The Florida-based company announced last week that it has been awarded a contract for a backup launch pad at Cape Canaveral. The pad, called Pad 39A, is home to the original Space Shuttle orbiters and the historic Space Launch Complex 41. NASA gave SpaceX the go-ahead for Pad 39A in July. But according to an announcement by NASA on Wednesday, SpaceX will be getting its first pad at Kennedy Space Center. "The contract award is subject to final approval by the NASA's independent Governmentwide Procurement Contracting Office (GPCO)," NASA said in a statement. "If awarded, the mission will 82157476af
